

2021 NATIONAL SYMPOSIUM FOR UNDERGRADUATE RESEARCH JUNE 6 – 9, 2021

Hosted by the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital Graduate School of Biomedical Sciences, the National Symposium for Undergraduate Research (NSUR) is a competitive academic program that allows students to showcase their research work in poster and oral platform settings and improve their presentation skills while also learning about the cutting-edge research and facilities at St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. The goals of the symposium are to feature research from top early-career scientists, to introduce St. Jude as a premier research institution, and to promote the recruitment of exemplary undergraduate students for the Graduate School. Symposium-related expenses (travel, lodging, meals) for selected students will be covered by the Graduate School.

Eligibility

To participate, an applicant must have met a St. Jude recruiter or be nominated by their research mentor, must be a U.S. citizen or permanent resident, must be enrolled at least as a junior with an interest in graduate studies in the biomedical sciences, and have not yet committed to a graduate school.

Deadline

The application cycle for the 2021 NSUR opens Monday, March 1, 2021. The electronic application must include a CV, research abstract, unofficial transcripts, nomination form, and reference letter from one research advisor. Completed applications must be submitted by noon CDT on Tuesday, April 20, 2021. Selected students will be notified of their acceptance by the end of April.
